✅ Kedu — Canonical Onboarding Script

Companion to Kedu-PRD.md, Section 6. This is the full stage-by-stage conversation, cleaned up for internal consistency (all figures now derive from one formula) and with the trust-explanation and voice-note-fallback moments written in.

Number logic used throughout: Daily limit × 7 = Weekly limit. Daily limit × 30 = Monthly allowance. Every figure below is derived from this, so nothing contradicts itself.

Stage 1: Discovery

User arrives via TikTok/ads. CTA: Chat with Kedu

Stage 2: Welcome

Kedu:

> Hey 👋 Welcome to Kedu. Kedu helps people who earn money but struggle with impulse spending and overeating by creating a strict savings and spending system. Unlike budgeting apps, savings apps, or your bank app that only show you information and wait for you to act, Kedu actively helps you think through your money decisions and prevents unnecessary spending. FYI: Kedu means “how are you?” in Igbo. Before we create your account, I want to understand your money habits. This takes about 3 minutes. Please answer honestly. There is no judgment here.

Stage 3: Identity

Kedu:

> First, tell me about yourself. What should I call you and what do you do for a living? This helps me understand your lifestyle, income pattern, and create a money system that fits your reality.

User: Daniel, software engineer.

Stage 4: Money Story (voice note)

Kedu:

> Nice to meet you, Daniel 👋 I want to understand your current money situation. Send me a voice note answering these:
> - How much do you normally make monthly?
> - What usually happens after you receive money?
> - What do you spend money on that you later regret?
> - What financial goal are you currently trying to achieve?
> - Have you tried anything before to control your spending?
> - What makes it difficult for you to stay consistent?

User sends voice note.

[Fallback — if transcription confidence is low or the note is unclear:]

> I want to make sure I got this right — here's what I heard: [playback summary]. Did I get that right, or is there anything I'm missing?

Stage 5: AI Reflection + Context Gathering

Kedu:

> Thanks for sharing, Daniel. I have a better understanding now. From what you told me:
> - You earn around ₦1.5M monthly.
> - Your biggest challenge is impulse spending and overeating around food and social activities.
> - Stress is one of your spending triggers.
> - Your goal is saving for a car. It looks like your biggest challenge isn't earning money. It's creating a system that protects your money when emotions take over. I just need two more things: how old are you, and where are you currently based?

User: 26, Abuja.

Kedu:

> Thanks, Daniel. This gives me a much clearer picture. Someone earning ₦1.5M in Abuja has a very different financial reality from someone earning the same amount elsewhere — > lifestyle costs, transportation, social activities, and expectations vary a lot by city. Based on everything you shared:

> - Income: ₦1.5M/month
> - Location: Abuja
> - Main challenge: impulse spending and overeating, especially food and social spending
> - Goal: car savings
> - Spending pattern: frequent unplanned spending Now let's build your Kedu profile.

Stage 6: Structured Questions

These use buttons — faster than typing for profiling data.

Question 1

> Which statement describes you best?

- I don't earn enough
- I earn enough but struggle to control spending
- I save but struggle to stay consistent
- Money comes in but disappears quickly
- I am already disciplined

Question 2

> What are your biggest impulse spending areas?

- Food delivery/restaurants
- Shopping
- Drinks/nightlife
- Friends/social activities
- Online purchases
- Other

Question 3

> How often do you spend money you didn't plan to spend?

- Almost never
- 1–3 times a month
- Weekly
- Multiple times every week
- Almost daily

Question 4

> How strict do you want Kedu to be?

- Remind me when I overspend
- Help me track my money
- Give me spending limits
- Strictly protect me from overspending

Stage 7: Kedu Plan

Kedu:

> Daniel, I have enough to build your first Kedu plan. Based on your income, lifestyle, and goals:
> - Daily spending limit: ₦10,000
> - Weekly spending limit: ₦70,000
> - Monthly spending allowance: ₦300,000
> - Spending window: 11AM–8PM Outside that window, transfers are locked — no exceptions. Within it, if you go over your daily limit, we'll talk through it before anything moves. Kedu protects the rest for your goals.

(Note: figures above are illustrative and should be generated from the actual profiling formula at build time — the point is that daily × 7 = weekly and daily × 30 = monthly, always, with no mismatched numbers across stages.)

Stage 8: The Trust Moment (verification)

Kedu:

> Before I can create your account, I need a few details to verify your identity — this is a bank requirement, not a Kedu thing. It's the same verification any Nigerian bank asks for. Here's exactly what I need and why:
> - Your BVN — this confirms you are who you say you are, and it's required by every licensed bank in Nigeria before an account can be opened. Kedu never sees or stores your BVN directly; it's passed securely to Rubies Microfinance Bank, who issues your account.
> - Your email and date of birth — just for your account record. I know handing this over can feel like a lot, especially to something that started as a WhatsApp chat. But Kedu's account is a real, licensed bank account, not an IOU — that's exactly why this step exists, and exactly why your money is actually protected once it's here. Ready when you are.

User completes verification.

Stage 9: Account Creation

Kedu:

> Your Kedu account has been created successfully 🎉 Your account number is: XXXXXXXX Pin this chat so you can send money here anytime.

Stage 10: Funding Account

Kedu:

> Your next step is to fund your Kedu account. Send ₦300,000 into this account — that's your full monthly allowance based on the plan we just built. Once received, Kedu will automatically activate your spending plan.

User sends money.

Stage 11: Successful Funding

Kedu:

> 🎉 Your Kedu account is now funded. Your spending protection system is active. Your available spending allowance:
> - Daily: ₦10,000
> - Weekly: ₦70,000 Remember: the goal isn't to stop you from enjoying your money. The goal is to make sure your money goes where the future version of you actually wants it to go.

Stage 12: First Transaction

User pays ₦5,000 at a restaurant.

Kedu:

> Payment successful ✅ You've spent ₦5,000 today. Remaining today: ₦5,000 Remaining this week: ₦65,000 Keep going, Daniel.

Stage 13: Habit-Forming Follow-Up (~10 hours later)

Kedu:

> Daniel, one thing that makes Kedu work better: Remove easy access to the old habits. Consider: ✅ Removing saved cards from shopping apps ✅ Reducing access to other banking apps ✅ Using Kedu as your main spending account Kedu works best when you design your environment to support your goals.
